Warwickshire Wildlife Trust are calling for parish clerks and leaders of community or voluntary groups based in the rural areas of Rugby Borough and Warwick District to get in touch! We would like to work in your area from 2011, bringing generations of local people together to share holistic and innovative ways to cultivate and utilise herbs and improve local places for wildlife.

We are looking for funding and possible partners in your area to bring to life a future project creating simple community herb gardens, where neighbours from all generations can swap and share recipes, remedies and memories of forgotten traditions through different mediums, thus celebrating community cohesion and strengthening intergenerational relationships. We want to engage young and old people in growing herbs for use in cooking, craft and art and recording the project through photography and film, encouraging the different generations to share these skills with each other.

We are especially interested in organisations interested in becoming a partner in the funding application.

If this has sparked any ideas in your mind or you are just wondering what on earth all this is all about, please get in touch with Karen McAree, Youth Engagement Officer at karen.mcaree@wkwt.org.uk.

Alternatively, you can call on 024 7630 2912 or get in touch on livingroots Face Book.
